

---

SOLVED Where is this color controlled at?

Posted by tbroas - 2007/09/02 01:01

---

Hello,

I've just started using Fireboard 1.0 and it's incredible! I use a joomla template that is dark, so I chose the "default_gray" template for fireboard. For the most part it looks great with my page, but when I click on a thread, the background is tan, see here:

<http://www.elearningtoolshed.com/compare/tan.jpg>

Then, when click to read the thread, the background of the message is black, with light gray text and it's very hard to read. Where can I make changes to modify these colors? I've looked in the css file, but I'm not sure what to edit.

<http://www.elearningtoolshed.com/compare/black.jpg>

Thanks in advance for any suggestions!

=====

Re:Where is this color controlled at on the css?

Posted by harley130 - 2007/09/02 05:17

---

Go to the backend of FB and choose the edit css icon. You can make the changes directly to your css file. I used a trial and error method to get mine like I wanted it.

=====

Re:Where is this color controlled at on the css?

Posted by tbroas - 2007/09/02 06:09

---

Thanks, I actually figured it out after playing with it.

=====