Will 1.0.3 be compatible with J1.5 Native.?

Im not sure where to put this.

I run a WOW Guild site that is currently running on J1.0.13 with Fireboard 1.0.1 and I love it. Its about time Joomla gets a forum that you dont need bridges or any of that crap to get it to work. :)

Any way back to my question I am wanting to upgrade to J1.5RC2 but I dont want to have to use the Legacy mode. Does anyone know if 1.0.3 will be J1.5 Native or will it need the legacy mode enabled like 1.0.1 and 1.0.2?

Will it run in legacy?

Bit confused. The Extensions directory says it works with 1.5, but the roadmap says not until 1.2, which would be who knows when?

The roadmap says 2.0 for native.

Yes, true all very confusing, why not put in the road map the correct information. From what I understand from the roadmap Fireboard is still not compatible (even in lagacy mode) with Joomla 1.5 RCx. But here and there it is said it does.... very confusing.

Also I dont understand, there is 1.0.1 beta....
And 1.0.2 is tested at the moment,
While tomorrow 1.0.3 stable will be released...

I am really glad with this forum software, but please be a bit more clear ;)

Thanks, and regards!!!
Thanks for all the work done!!

Would you rather they update the roadmap or delay 1.0.3? So many things to get done, few resources to get it done.

Yes, ok, that would be great, thanks!! Just kidding....

Well... updating wouldn't cost that much time... or do you think answering all these people with the same question is faster?

I am trying to make it work with legacy mode at the moment (basicly group_id problem) and I'm not sure what can cause further problems for J1.5 still (needs testing). So, Maybe stable will work with J1.5 (as far as I can see its ok) but yet native support means rewriting the whole component which will be for V2 series.
