I find this kind of response very offensive. I have run into this issue myself, and I searched the forums using 'editor field' 'editor' and 'text area'. I suspect that in time I might have come across the post you cite here, but despite searching I had come up empty until I managed to call up this thread.

Forum searches are not perfect, and their success as a support medium relies on the user to find the exact terminology that will call up answer threads. Since the terminology used is by no means obvious or homogenous, it is entirely possible for a well-meaning user to do a number of searches and still come up empty. I thought that "Text Area" would be a likely search term, since it's the one ACTUALLY USED IN THE CONFIG. But that only turned up THIS thread, not the apparently 'official' one cited here.

In other words, had I not come across this thread, I would most likely have posted the same way, and I DID SEARCH.

QFMFT! The search feature is craptastic since it brings up every post instead of only the threads so you immediately get fifty pages of garbage that can be just for one thread (awesome huh?).
