
length of subject for post must be longer describing a question in one line is hard enough as it is. Describing a question in half a line is most of the time just half the question. so maybe make the length a config-var to match developers layout-width and/or truncate the subject in the lists of posts (and make the length of that a configurable var as well).

always happy to comment :)

and on a lighter note:

thanks for a great forum
