
Customizeable Login Link

Posted by Roaster - 2007/08/18 10:32

Hi,

I customized the default mod_login to fit my needs (added a different title, icons and so on). When clicking the login link in Fireboard it does not use/call this modified mod.

So could you please add an option somewhere to setup an URL to override the FB default link, please?

For a workaround I've changed one of the php files (don't recall at the momen) and inserted my own link but that's not the best solution anyway.

I have installed fireboard on my site <http://insidesomalia.org/>. When user clicks on Login, it directs them to home page of site instead of login page.

How can I fix this :unsure: ?

Thanks in advance, Abbas

The only way I know of is to go to administrator>components>com_Fireboard>language>English.php and change line 340.

It will say

DEFINE('_PROFILEBOX_LOGIN', 'Login');

The system will not let me put the actual changed code in for some reason, so put the a href statement inside the " for Login so that after the comma you have apostrophe the ahref code, login, close the a, and then another apostrophe

What a major issue, if we cannot find a fix - I'm using this with Community Builder and it's a complete pain - why not turn off the login altogether, as in this site's template?

Anyone?

What do you mean "no fix"? A workaround was provided.

The system will not let me put the actual changed code in for some reason, so put the a href statement inside the " for Login so that after the comma you have apostrophe the ahref code, login, close the a, and then another apostrophe

In other words replace the word Login with the URL you want the site to redirect to. There's at LEAST one more workaround out there.

I used the advice given by mbajames and it was a perfect workaround. Just wanted to say thanks!:cheer:

i agree with the topic starter. the login link should be included in fireboard configuration, since not everyone using standard mod_login and mod_registration. for example, i'm using com_secureregistration, so i have to manually edit 2-3 files so that it will publish that modified components link.
