

---

Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by randellid - 2008/04/21 11:07

---

Hi all,
Just a very un-pushy post to see if anyone has a date for the release of firemessage?

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by mcrollo - 2008/04/21 11:14

---

Best of Joomla told us, it will be released in February. February 2008 has gone, now is April, so I think, they mean February 2009 or 2010 ... "Odyssey 2010 first contact" ;)

Greets
Frank

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by m1tch37 - 2008/04/21 11:20

---

Oh, great...

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by JoomlaJunkie - 2008/04/21 12:33

---

I myself would love a FireMassage. Thats the same thing as a deep tissue massage right?

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by grumblemarc - 2008/04/21 22:06

---

Sounds extremely painful.

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by clanspot - 2008/04/23 01:20

---

I had an asian women give me one of those once and a week later I had a bad rash... I won't tell you were!

Good luck with the FireMassage!

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by randellid - 2008/04/23 20:54

---

Oops! There I go again posting in the wrong forum.

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by tsteege - 2008/04/24 00:50

---

---

I'm not sure if anyone works at BOJ any more, 2 days and no reply?

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by danialt - 2008/04/24 01:08

---

I have already replied in other topics. I am short in staff to release another component. even releasing alpha is a hell job as then you will have the messages all over boards about a component that can not be supported.

If there are willing devs, please let me know and I will release the code.

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by clanspot - 2008/04/24 04:03

---

Danialt, I am willing to dev and bug test and pinpoint these errors prior to release. I believe I have state this myself in forums along with PM's directly to you but no response from either.

I imagine you receive many messages daily but I am willing to support a component which I would like to see released myself. I have support and been a part of many dev teams. Groupjive, NinJoomla, CB1.2, etc...

My skills are primarily in tracing bugs, design, layout, css, etc..

Please PM me with response so we can push FB and FM along in the BOJ project board.

Thanks,
James

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by mcrollo - 2008/04/24 16:04

---

Oh great ... thanx clanspot ;) Seems, than the long awaited FM will be released shortly.

But, ... will it be called FireMessage or FireMassage than?! :P

Greets
Mc

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by Pokeralsbijbaan - 2008/04/24 17:04

---

clanspot wrote:

Danialt, I am willing to dev and bug test and pinpoint these errors prior to release. I believe I have state this myself in forums along with PM's directly to you but no response from either.

I imagine you receive many messages daily but I am willing to support a component which I would like to see released myself. I have support and been a part of many dev teams. Groupjive, NinJoomla, CB1.2, etc...

My skills are primarily in tracing bugs, design, layout, css, etc..

Please PM me with response so we can push FB and FM along in the BOJ project board.

---

Thanks,
James

:woohoo:

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by clanspot - 2008/04/24 17:42

---

No problem, I have made my request to Danialt here as well as in a Private Message with no response as of yet but hopefully within the next day or so I can come aboard and start picking at code.

An Open-Beta may do this project some good if he is so short handed. Creating a new Forum Category specifically for FM Bug Reports would be a two minute task. Does anyone else have any thoughts about that?

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by danialt - 2008/04/24 20:16

---

@clanspot

added you to msn, looking forward to talking to you

cheers

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by clanspot - 2008/04/24 22:49

---

Accepted, and added!

I am remote into my home pc from work so you will have to bare with me a little bit until this evening when I get home.

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by randellid - 2008/04/24 23:02

---

I'm really please that I made a typo in the topic title, it seems to have got this theme really moving.

Having used the great fireboard

I am really looking forward to giving my members the firemEessage system, I'm sure it's going to be a great addition to my community.

Maybe a post on joomla.org would generate more interest from devs????

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by grumblemarc - 2008/04/25 00:05

---

Moving? I don't see movement. I see activity in this thread but it hasn't gotten FM any closer to getting released. There are a lot of PHP coders out there. I'm surprised none of them have stepped up to assist other than those that already have.

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by randellid - 2008/04/25 00:22

---

Activity on this thread, regarding the release of messageboard is a little more than last week, Do you not agree that that is a step forward?????????

Maybe you could try and be a little more positive, after all, these guys do this in their free time, for free.

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by grumblemarc - 2008/04/25 00:41

---

I'm well aware of that fact. I have my OWN programming open source forum venture, FOR FREE, so I'm WELL AWARE of what it takes. And a step forward from what?

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by randellid - 2008/04/25 00:47

---

If you are so aware of everything and have your OWN forum, then you should know how to behave in then.

Cheers up Buddy, life ain't that bad. :woohoo:

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by grumblemarc - 2008/04/25 00:49

---

Sorry to rain on your parade guy. But the fact is that FM is no closer to being released now than it was BEFORE you started this thread. Unless of course you're volunteering some of your programming skills to help Danial get it out the door?

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by clanspot - 2008/04/25 01:05

---

Come on folks... lets not generate arguments over what is supposed to be a friendly conversation. Shake hands, and makeup or whatever it takes to get you guys back on track and on focus of the end goal.

Goal = Stable, "Mostly" Bug Free release candidate.

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by kingBT - 2008/04/25 01:18

---

Why FIREMESSAGE? when we have uddelM.

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by tsteege - 2008/04/25 01:23

---

---

I agree with randell, why does grumblemarc have such issues with any user asking questions on any subject? I guess the name says it all. :angry:

If we don't question things, changes will NEVER happen.

=====

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by clanspot - 2008/04/25 01:32

---

I personally use UddelM myself but only because Clexus/FireMessage was not available when I went for it. I like UddelM, don't get me wrong but I have used "Clexus" on a number of other sites including here and personally prefer it over others.

Everyone obviously has his or her own opinion or preference but this is mine. Not to mention that but being on a development team gives a first hand look at a component/module/mambot and allows us "Open Source" users a chance to give back what we use. Give/Take relationship. Not to mention that but I have built several strong friendships by doing just this.

I personally like telling people... "Hey! I was apart of that."

As for Grumble, I noticed a message in his Forum Sig stating he no-longer was working with the Team here at BOJ so I haven't a clue what the issue is with him. No excuses for him but we all have bad days.

=====

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by TipsogTriks - 2008/04/25 02:50

---

My 2 cents is that an attitude that grumblemarc is showing there, and has been showing lately, is worse than not leading anywhere. Because it leads backwards.

Flaming people for asking questions is not anywhere near good support or community spirit. I suggest you stay at your own forum community with that attitude.

On topic. I, as many others use UddelM, but prefer Clexus/FireMessage. But I need to know something.

Clexus where jQuery powered, and that caused a lot of problems on popular templates. Are you going to do something about it, or do like you do with FB. Run with jQuery no matter what consequences it creates for novice users?

I'm not saying this because I have those problems. But I think of Joomla's main user group. After all, isn't Joomla meant to be the CMS for those who want to create a dynamic website without knowing PHP, HTML or JS? We shouldn't just think of ourself, we should take care of those. That would save the forum for a lot of unnecessary questions.

clanspot, I am a new member of the Ninjoomla team, are you still on it?

Cheers,
Stian

=====

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by grumblemarc - 2008/04/25 03:14

---

Backwards? How so? ALL I said is that the cheerleading doesn't really accomplish anything. It does not move you forward.

I wish that FM gets released. Absolutely. But stating a fact that it's progress has not advanced is NOT doing anything except maybe stating the obvious. I don't see te negativity in that.

THE, and THE only problem facing FireMessage right now is lack of development. Danial has asked and asked repeatedly and has gotten nearly NO assistance in this area. Those volunteering to step up and fill the gaps I applaud you.

---

Also for once and for all let's make one thing clear. A forum is a place for DISCUSSION. Sometimes heated sometimes not. But some have seem to have forgotten that EVERYBODY has the right to their opinion and disagree. Anyone telling anyone to "go somewhere else" has absolutely NO right to do so, mod or not. So if SOMEone could show me the moderator handbook for BOJ I'd be glad to follow it to the letter. Otherwise I'd appreciate people NOT projecting THEIR values on to my "behavior".

You may now deplete my karma.

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by danialt - 2008/04/25 03:17

---

I will try to reduce the JS things here and there in the component. This can be done with a better design that current one (designers are welcome), so we wouldn't need slideDown/Up animations, ...

jQuery by nature is not the trouble (and i think with the latest version there is no conflict with mootools). It is poor programming of other templates, even JS libraries that causes it. Though, if it is really needed i will use it.

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by TipsogTriks - 2008/04/25 03:23

---

Hey, for one, I know you have probably answered this FM question a lot. But maybe it needed a refresh.

Because BoJ is a pretty heavy forum, and getting a fresh thread on the frontpage might help potential PHP developers to be aware of the fact that danialt needed help.

Perhaps stating that on the FM dl page might lead to more manpower.

The only part of your attitude I got a problem with is that you assume that people already know the answer. But probably no one know as much about this forum as you do, but eyh, can't blame them for that ;)

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by TipsogTriks - 2008/04/25 03:33

---

danialt wrote:

I will try to reduce the JS things here and there in the component. This can be done with a better design that current one (designers are welcome), so we wouldn't need slideDown/Up animations, ...

jQuery by nature is not the trouble (and i think with the latest version there is no conflict with mootools). It is poor programming of other templates, even JS libraries that causes it. Though, if it is really needed i will use it.

I understand that. A jQuery to Mootools conversion is more work than you can ask anybody to do for free, but less JS errors, or less use of jQuery is a great step forward.

And I agree that template designers that don't ensure that their template's work in popular components that uses jQuery (like FB and like) shouldn't do JS in the first place (RT and YT, I'm looking at you). I'm not saying FM should be completely Mootools compliant, but when something is going to be redone anyways, why not do your best? That's my theory on why you take your time on FM. I for one never release anything that I know have bugs.

Good luck with it, I would love to help, but my schedule for the 2 months ahead are completely booked as we are busy setting up our new sites (namely NinjaTheme, NinjaForge and like) but if you still haven't released it by the time I have time on my hands I'll do my best to help you ;)

---

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by randellid - 2008/04/25 10:24

---

grumblemarc wrote:

Sorry to rain on your parade guy. But the fact is that FM is no closer to being released now than it was BEFORE you started this thread. Unless of course you're volunteering some of your programming skills to help Danial get it out the door?

Blimey! What parade? I asked a very simple question, Please do not reply to my posts in future. Your contributions are not helpful and are most certainly not wanted. Karma Removed.

=====

Re:Firemassage - Any news?

Posted by subfighter - 2008/04/30 21:24

---

well they have had FireMessage on this site for a long time now.. Why not release and make a new beta forum to find bugs as someone suggested???

bridge not to bridge, jfusion, rocketwerx, and Fireboard... what to use.. there is no clear forum solution for joomla 1.5.3

=====