
Problem with template I think???

Posted by chris72a - 2008/05/25 02:51

Hi All,

I've had fireboard / joomla up and running for a week or so everything going great, last night I went to the forums and it is displaying as below.

<http://www.obtrailriders.com/index.php/forum>

I think it may be a template issue but There is no error to start troubleshooting, I did not make any changes or anything.

I have tried uninstalling and re-installing the components, no difference, I also tried uninstalling, and deleteing the component files through ftp and then reinstalling still no difference, I would really appreciate if someone in the know could point me in the right direction here.

Many Thanks
Chris.

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by JerryLeeLewis - 2008/05/25 13:06

how did you link fireboard

the link didn work on your site

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by kingBT - 2008/05/25 13:13

The FB css is deleted or wrong linked.

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by grumblemarc - 2008/05/25 14:25

Maybe it's the SEF you're using. Not configured properly for FB.

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by chris72a - 2008/05/25 14:39

Hi guys,

Thanks for the replies, i'm still battling, i have found 1 thing that from the administrator module of joomla, if I go to fireboard admin and then click on a link to a forum post it comes out fine, so maybe it is something wrong with the template in the root, but I have re-uploaded, deleted etc but still nothing, any ideas, thank you all so much for the replies.

Cheers
Chris.

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by grumblemarc - 2008/05/25 15:19

I think it's the SEF. Double check your configuration or temporarily turn it off.

=====

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by chris72a - 2008/05/25 15:35

Thanks for the response, have tried disabling sef still no luck, any other ideas??

Thanks
Chris.

=====

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by grumblemarc - 2008/05/25 18:31

Well it isn't the template. "All of a sudden" usually means you changed something in your Joomla configuration that is affecting FB. I say this because NOTHING happens by itself or all of a sudden. Possibly it could also be a newly installed or updated extension. Again. The fact that it works correctly from the admin section tells me it's working as it should. Not a template problem. Retrace your steps. Even if you think it isn't related.

=====

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by major_tom - 2008/05/25 18:54

i think it IS the template. your file joomla_root/templates/siteground-j15-4/css/template.css shows no css codes but it shows a xhtml file..., so you may have saved something wrong ;-)

also does the templates/system/css/system.css and without an stylesheet...this is how it have to look like...

=====

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by grumblemarc - 2008/05/25 20:22

Could be. Could be. But CSS doesn't just vanish or move on it's own. Also would not the FIREBOARD CSS still load?

=====

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by major_tom - 2008/05/25 20:49

but the forum.css link is also curious http://www.obtrailriders.com/index.php/components/com_fireboard/template/default_red/forum.css

the /index.php/ part should not be there....., so grumble is right with the SEF point!!

=====

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by TipsogTriks - 2008/05/25 21:53

To me it looks like a server misconfig. Might be your host screwing up. That way it could happen all of the sudden.

Experienced similar issues with Hostmonster.

=====

Re:Problem with template I think???

Posted by chris72a - 2008/05/26 06:13

O.K Guys, If I was close I'd let you all slap me, after backing up databases and blowing it all away and starting again everything was fine, then I went to re-configure some bits and pieces, and guess what after checking "search engine friendly" urls it did it again. So theres the problem, I'm really sorry to have wasted your time but thanks for the replies, I did turn off sef but in the modules section, not in the global configuration.. So all is well now and if anything hopefully I can help the next person that does it.

Cheers and Thanks

Chris.

=====